

Angelika Lex
Elsevier

Angelika Lex. 1959 born in Vaterstetten, close to Munich, Germany, 1973 emigration to the Netherlands 1979 - 85 University studies at University Stuttgart and University Tübingen, Biology, Immunology, Biochemistry. Since 1987 employee at Elsevier, Amsterdam, the Netherlands. During that time, Dr. Angelika Lex has been active in different positions: Head of the Editorial Office of the biological and biomedical book program. 1994: Responsible of the reorganization and globalization of the Elsevier Book Production. July 1997: Journal Change Management. July 2000: General Manager Journal Production. January 2003: Integrations Manager, head of the medical publishing company Urban & Fischer (Munich and Jena, Germany) and its Polish partner Urban & Partner (Wroclaw); both acquired by Elsevier B.V. May 2003: Appointment as Executive Director of the newly formed Elsevier GmbH with its headquarters in Munich, Germany. March 2007: Director Operations Europe, responsible for the operational division Health Sciences Europe. Since January 2010: Appointment as Vice President Academic and Government Relations.